This is the exam paper you will receive

ESSCA. Economics Workshops. Semester 5 + 6, 2024. Resit Exam

During the module 'Fiscal Policy and Inequality', we looked at different taxes and duties and their potential use as a tool in government policy. Your subject for this exam is:

(You will receive the subject on the day of the exam.)

Method:

1. Explain the problem
2. Make clear propositions for government policy using all the taxes and duties you think useful
3. Provide a PESTEL analysis on the implementation of your propositions
Include economic concepts dealt with in class that might be useful (see 'contents' on the website).
4. Provide a personal conclusion on the difficulties / likelihood of your propositions being implemented

Format:

1. Write in English (preferably United Kingdom English)
2. There is no maximum or minimum number of words
3. Make a cover page with your name, course title (Economics Workshops, Resit Exam), date and teacher
4. Use the academic writing skills studied during the module (the use of referencing, footnotes, quotations etc.) (see 'Academic writing guidelines' - lesson 12).
5. Since you only have 2 hours for the exam, you probably won't have time to do any research, so a bibliography is not necessary, but if you do find data, don't forget to add the source.
6. Save the document in pdf format before sending it to ESSCA

Evaluation grid:

1. Explanation of the problem: 3 points
2. Propositions: 5 points
3. PESTEL analysis: 5 points
4. Use of economic concepts: 3 points
5. Conclusion: 2 points
6. Use of academic writing protocol: 2 points

Reminder: what I am looking for is an intelligent understanding of Fiscal Policy as a tool. You probably won't have time to find data, but you can show, via your proposals and PESTEL analysis, that you understand the overall concepts.
